The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-10 and 14-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by DE '529, of record.

Figure 3 of DE '529 shows a sandwiched module with leads 22. Full faith and credit is given to the EPO Examiner who listed this reference as an X reference against claims 1-10, 14-15, and 17-18 in the international application. As to claim 16, it is inherent that any means of measuring the pressure of a fluid in a valve module involves a channel to that fluid.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 and 14-18 are, in the alternative, rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DE '529 in view of Hayashi et al.

The use of a plurality of monitoring modules, such as alternating modules, is considered and obvious matter of design in that it is merely a duplication of parts. Hayashi et al show a common manifold using serial plug together connectors. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to have used such connectors to supply power and control to the solenoids of DE '529.

Art Unit: 3753

Claim 11-13 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
